

How to enter

Selling at auction is quick, the easiest and most straightforward way to sell your classic and will often return you more money than if you attempt to sell privately. It also removes the hassle of waiting for strangers to come to your property and helps your vehicle take advantage of marketing Clwyd Car Auctions can provide.

Valuations & reserves

We can arrange for the vehicle to be inspected by one of our auctioneers who will advise you on its probable value and on any steps you might reasonably take to maximise your return at auction. This inspection is free and carries no obligation whatsoever. We will also discuss the reserve with you (the price below which the vehicle will not be sold). Reserves are kept confidential. If we think your reserve may prevent your vehicle from selling, we will advise you that it is not worth entering into the sale, saving you time and money.

Transport

Transport of your vehicle to the auction can be arranged at extra cost – we will need your vehicle on site at least two days before the sale.

Payment

We pay out by cheque 14 days after the sale.

Early consignment

We cannot over-emphasise the importance of early consignment of vehicles. The sooner we know your vehicle will be in the sale the more chance we have to promote it – not only on this website but via our advertising and online campaigns and through the media and the classic vehicle world.

Late entries

We close the catalogue around three days before the date of the sale. Entries after this date are classed as late entries. We will do our best to add them to the printed catalogue. However all vehicles will shown on our website.
